Voters face key decisions Tuesday

Voters throughout the area will be asked to make crucial decisions during the primary election next Tuesday.

In several communities, the winning candidates Tuesday will face no opposition in November and ballot questions can be approved or rejected by voters. One of the most crucial questions is the approval of Proposition S in Wayne. Voters will be asked to approve the joining of SMERSA, a funding mechanism which will allow the city to levy up to another 15 mills for 10 years to fund public safety. The city currently faces a $1.5 million deficit and has been told by auditors that the municipality will completely run out of money by the end of next year. The proposal has been characterized as the only mechanism open to officials to save the city from state intervention and the possible appointment of an emergency financial manager. Opponents claim it will place too serious a burden on taxpayers. Proponents also argue that while the millage rate may be higher, because of the decrease in property values, residents will actually only pay the same amount as they did in 2008. Opponents claim that the dedicated millage approved by voters to fund public safety years ago was used by officials for general fund expenses and that the burden is too severe.

> Voters will, in effect, choose the new supervisor, clerk and several trustees from the primary ballot.

In Plymouth Township the winners of the Republican primary balloting for the top jobs will be unopposed in November with one exception.

Voters will, in effect, choose the new supervisor, clerk and several trustees from the primary ballot.

The hotly contested and controversial supervisor's ballot section will offer only the name of current Supervisor Shannon Price, who was appointed to the position last year. He is opposed by write-in candidate State Rep. Kurt Heise whose name was removed from the ballot following a lawsuit by a Price support-

Concours d'elegance

Rare vehicles displayed at show this weekend

The 38th annual Concours d'Elegance will roll millions of dollars in vehicles onto the lawns at the Inn at St. John's in Plymouth this weekend and whether it is Duesenbergs or modern collectibles, every automobile enthusiast will find something to love.

More than 300 vintage and classic automobiles and motorcycles are arriving daily from 31 states and countries to participate in one of the most prestigious automotive events in the world. The show attracts 15,000 show day attendees and almost 3,000 special event attendees every year, according to Larry Moss, chairman of the Concours d'Elegance.

"Our 38th annual Concours promises to be one of our best ever," Moss said. "We've expanded our program over three days in order to attract a wider audience of automotive enthusiasts and first-time visitors. I encourage people who have never attended a Concours event to make it a point to check us out."

This 1938 Horch, 853A Phaeton, owned by Ed Schoenthaler, will be displayed at Concours d'Elegance this weekend. The car is one of only three ever made and the only one still in existence. Barry Meguiar, best known as the host of Discovery's Velocity series "Car Crazy", will be honored as the 2016 Concours d'Elegance of America "Enthusiast of the Year." The board members are recognizing Meguiar for his decades of automotive enthusiasm and his association with the classic car community throughout the U.S.

"I'm excited to be recognized by the Concours d'Elegance of America board and I look forward to renewing old friendships and making new ones in the car capital of the world," Meguiar said.

The Concours d'Elegance has its roots in 17th century France, when the aristocracy would parade their horse-drawn carriages through the parks of Paris. With the advent of the automobile, Concours d'Elegance events

Cooling centers designated in local areas

Soaring temperatures along with high humidity is causing a 'heat dome' over much of the country, according to meteorologists, prompting several local communities to designate cooling centers for public use last week.

While somewhat cooler temperatures are predicted this week, Michigan State Police have sent out warnings including safety tips to prevent serious consequences from the severe heat and the Red Cross has made access to extreme heat safety tips and severe weather alerts including heat advisories, watches and warnings instantly available at redcross.org/apps.

"This is serious heat and it makes for a very serious situation for many. The Red Cross wants Michiganders to know how to deal with the extreme heat," said Kimberly Burton, American Red Cross regional chief executive officer. "We're encouraging people to check in on their friends and neighbors who don't have air conditioning or who live alone, be aware of increased pet needs and pay attention to signs that may indicate a heat-related emergency."

> This is serious heat and it makes for a very serious situation for many.

Kathleen Rich, the emergency planner in Canton Township where cooling centers have been designated, seconded those remarks and echoed the safety tips from the Red Cross and Michigan State Police.

Key tips include:

• Never leave children or pets in a vehicle - even for a few minutes. The inside temperature of a car can quickly reach 120 degrees.

• Stay hydrated by drinking plenty of fluids throughout the day. Avoid drinks with alcohol or caffeine.

• Slow down, stay indoors and avoid strenuous exercise during the hottest part of the day.

• Wear loose-fitting, light-colored clothing, avoiding dark colors because they absorb the rays of the sun.

• Use a buddy system if required to work outdoors and take frequent breaks.

• Check on animals frequently to ensure that they are not suffering from the heat. Make sure they have plenty of cool water and shade.

"Many pets are considered part of the family and in such high temperatures it's time to closely look after all family members," said Burton. "To help, we've created a new app where pet owners can find use-

Wayne firefighters agree to $230,000 in cuts

The 12 members of the Wayne Fire Department have agreed to contract concessions of more than $230,000 in a new-one year agreement.

Members of the Wayne City Council accepted the new agreement by unanimous vote last week after union members agreed to the massive concessions by a 9-3 vote of the members affected.

According to Mitch Tokarski, president of the Wayne Professional Firefighters Union Local 1279, the agreement includes "huge cuts for our guys."

> We also took an across-the-board 2 percent wage concession in an effort to help out.

He noted that there was dissension and disagreement in ratifying the new contract. "We understand the financial condition of the city and we know how important it is to have a viable fire department moving forward."

Tokarski said that the firefighters, who do not receive Social Security, but rather contributions to a pension fund, have now agreed to reduce that contribution by the city to 5.73 percent, which is less than the 6.2 percent required by the federal government for Social Security contributions. The firefighters have also agreed to contribute 30 percent rather than 20 percent to the healthcare and have a $2,500 annual deductible to meet before their benefits are paid at the full rate.

"That means about $6,000 per year for each member," Tokarski said. "We also took an across-the-board 2 percent wage concession in an effort to help out."

"This is horrible for our guys, but we know the importance of providing services," he said.

The new agreement will be in effect from July 1 until June 30, 2019.

The city did agree to allow

Council approves appointments

Robert Dunajski and Sam Durante have been named to the Westland Planning Commission and Scott Catallo to the Brownfield Redevelopment Authority.

The appointments, made by Mayor William Wild, were confirmed by unanimous vote of the members of the city council at the July 18 meeting.

Dunajski and Durante will join the nine-member board which meets at 7:30 p.m. the first Tuesday of every month in the Council Chambers of city hall. The members review site plan approvals, special land use requests, rezoning requests, land division requests, mechanical amusement licenses, street and alley vacations and other issues of concern. Dunajski and his wife, Miranda, have been Westland residents since 2007. He has been employed with Alta Equipment Co. as a Regional Operations Manager for 14 years. He has also served on the Zoning Board of Appeals and was appointed to the Planning Commission in 2012.

> "I look forward to continuing to work with them throughout their upcoming terms

Durante is a 20-year Westland resident who retired 9 years ago from Terminex as a sales associate. He also served as Director of Environmental Services at Sani Hospital. He has served on the Planning Commission since 2010 and will serve another three-year term.

The Brownfield Redevelopment Authority is an 11-member board which meets following the submission of a Brownfield Redevelopment Plan. The authority members facilitate business and property owners' redeveloping brownfield sites throughout Westland.

Catallo has lived in Westland for more than 20 years. He is an architect at NORR and is married with three children. He also serves on the Economic Development Corp. and the Tax Increment Finance Authority. He was first appointed to the Brownfield Authority in 2010 and will serve another three years with this appointment.

"These gentlemen have worked hard on their respective boards and commissions during their previous terms and I look forward to continuing to work with them throughout their upcoming terms," commented Wild. "They bring with them a wealth of knowledge and experience from their unique fields and will continue to be great assets to the community they serve."

Garden Club anniversary planned

Members of the Wayne Garden Club are preparing to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the club.

The celebration is planned for 11 a.m. until 3 p.m. Aug. 20 at Goudy Park. A noon program will recognize the accomplishments of the club during the century of service along with the dedication of a memorial plaque to the city, commemorating the longevity of the group.

The afternoon will include children's crafts and booths staffed by garden experts who will share planting and gardening information and answer questions about flowers and plants.

There will be refreshments and gift bags.

firefighters to engage in specific types of outside employment work which had previously been restricted but still does not impair his or her ability to perform his or her job duties with the city.

The city also agreed not to sub-contract services to a private non-governmental entity if such subcontracting would result in the layoff of any member of the bargaining unit.

The city also agreed to re-open the contract for a specific pension plan manager on Nov. 1, 2018 and on Nov. 1 of this year for bargaining of the payout of earned and unused annual leave.

The 2 percent wage cuts will be restored to the firefighters, according to the new agreement, when the city annual audit confirms that the General Fund Balance has reached at least 20 percent of the General Fund expenses.

Moving tribute

Inkster firefighters assisted with the raising of the American flag last week for the funeral procession for Dallas Police Officer Michael Krol, 40, who was killed July 7 during an attack on police as he worked a protest March in Texas. His funeral in Redford Township was attended by hundreds of police officers who stood at attention as his casket was taken to his final resting place.

evolved into competitions between automobile manufacturers, custom coachbuilders, and owners, whose vehicles were judged on the beauty of their design.

The Concours d'Elegance of America originated at Oakland University's Meadow Brook Hall, the historic home of Matilda Dodge Wilson, widow of automotive pioneer John Dodge. In 2011 the world-class event moved to the grounds of the Inn at St. John's.

This year's 22nd festival season will feature productions of William Shakespeare's As You Like It, and Richard II, as well as Karen Tarjan's The Killer Angels, based on the novel by Michael Shaara."

"After the success of last year's Michigan Shakespeare Festival run of performances in Canton, we are thrilled that they are continuing to expand their reach into the Canton community this summer," said Canton Arts Coordinator Jennifer Tobin. This year's productions include:

The Killer Angels - The festival will present the Pulitzer Prize-winning book based on the Battle of Gettysburg in 1863. This is a stage adaptation of Michael Shaara's novel. Playwright Karen Tarjan has adapted the novel, which Janice Blixt, the festival artistic director, will direct. This is the theatrical premier of this piece.

As You Like It - This comedy features Rosalind and Celia fleeing to the forest, where they meet others, like themselves, who have created a society outside the strictures of the city and eventually find their true loves and their true selves.

Richard II - This drama tells the story of a boy who became King of England before he was 10. The prequel to "Richard IV" is directed by Janice Blixt and stars Robert Kauzlaric as Richard.

Tickets are on sale now for the Canton performances, including season Flex Passes, at www.cantonvillagetheater.org. A Flex Pass will include one ticket to each production, and show dates and times can be chosen at the time of purchase, or at a later date. Ticket prices range from $16-$40, depending on patron's age.

BELLEVILLE - PLYMOUTH

Going once, twice

Hollywood movie props to be auctioned

Movie buffs from throughout the area will be gathering in Belleville Saturday for the auction of props from several well-known movies, along with numerous other unique items.

Rusty Oswalt, the former owner of Ancient Treasures in Wayne, has continued his career making movie props and prototypes, and has decided to sell many of the items in his personal collection which will be among the more than 130 lots for sale Saturday.

"Ten percent of all our sales will go to the Gleaners Food Bank which helps to feed the hungry throughout the area," Oswalt said. He and his partner in the auction, James Latham, have been preparing the items for weeks, sorting and deciding which of the artifacts from Oswalt's private collection he is willing to sell.

"I have been making props for movies since 1994 and I am a collector," Oswalt said. Currently, the site of Spiritual Isreal Church and Isreal Gardens Activity Center, is filled with items like life-size original prototypes for mummies from The Mummy movies, "both one and two," Oswalt said. The same prototypes were also used and seen in National Treasure with Nicolas Cage and in Indiana Jones and the Crystal Skulls.

Also ready for a new home are goggles worn by Johnny Depp in the Sleepy Hollow movie, along with the collection of doctor's instruments the actor brandished.

There are also many, many early concert posters, many autographed by rock 'n' roll legends and unusual items from celebrities.

The original knives used by Alice in the Resident Evil Extinction movie and one of the original swords used in the movie battles during The 300 will be on the auction block.

"There really is just way too much to list," Oswalt said. "There will be no reserve prices and no minimum bids on the items."

Viewing of items will begin at noon and the auction will start at 1 p.m. this Saturday, July 30 at 22971 Martinsville Road in Belleville.

Oswalt said that shoppers can reserve a seat by calling him at (734)722-1489.

Prototypes for mummies used in movies The Mummy both one and two and in National Treasure with Nicolas Cage and Indiana Jones and the Crystal Skulls will be auctioned this Saturday.

Goggles used by Johnny Depp in Sleepy Hollow along with his doctor's kit and a set of original knives used by Alice in Resident Evil Extinction are among the 130 items to be auctioned in Belleville Saturday.

State process to fund DeHoCo razing begins

Initial steps are under way for demolition at the site of the former Detroit House of Corrections.

The buildings, described as blight by state officials, has hindered development in both Plymouth and Northville townships.

The Michigan Land Bank Fast Track Authority has awarded the ATC Group of Novi a contract to begin preliminary environmental analysis work at the site, located on Five Mile Road.

Gov. Rick Snyder in May signed into law a plan to transfer $4 million to the Michigan Land Bank Fast Track Fund so it could start preparation work at the 125-acre site, which was used for the Detroit House of Corrections from the early 1900s to mid-1980s, and also as a rubbish dump from the 1920s through the 1950s. Buildings on the site have been vacant since 2004.

"Redeveloping the DeHoCo site will not only be an economic boost to Plymouth and Northville townships, but it also will improve the quality of life for its residents, making it a stronger community," said Steve Arwood, director of the State Department of Talent and Economic Development, which oversees the Land Band Fast Track Authority. "These are the first steps of a long process, but mark an important step to move forward on improving this site. We are committed to moving quickly, but diligently to ensure safe demolition of these blighted structures."

State Rep. Kurt Heise, R-Plymouth Township, sponsored the legislation to provide the initial resources, bills approved with overwhelming bipartisan support.

"This site isn't just an eyesore, it has hurt surrounding property values and has been a barrier to economic development that could create more and better jobs in the community," Heise said. "It's taken a lot of work to get to this point and we have far to go. But I'm focused on getting this project started so the region can benefit."

State agencies and the ATC Group are planning to start reviewing the structures on the site this week to gather information needed to plan for future demolition work. The land bank is planning an aggressive timeline that could see the demolition work under way before the end of the year.

The environmental studies also are needed to determine potential uses for the site, or what additional work beyond demolition could be needed before the land could be redeveloped, officials said.
